Order Granting Motion for Summary Judgment and Closing Case

V.

Air Truck Express, Inc., et al.,

Defendants

10 Delivery driver Charles Winston Jr., sues his former employer Air Truck Express, Inc. and D
11 & N Delivery Corporation—the company that hired Air Truck to provide delivery drivers—seeking 12 unpaid overtime wages under the Fair Labor Standards Act (“FLSA”). Defendants move for 13 summary judgment, arguing that they are exempt from paying Winston any overtime under the 14 Motor Carrier Exemption to the FLSA.<sup>1</sup> Because defendants have met their burden of showing that 15 the Motor Carrier Exemption shields them from overtime-pay liability, they are entitled to summary
16 judgment on Winston’s claim. Accordingly, I grant defendants’ motion for summary judgment, 17 enter judgment in their favor and against Winston, and close this case.<sup>2</sup>

Background

19 Winston alleges that he was employed by Air Truck as a local driver performing services for 20 D & N Delivery Corporation.<sup>3</sup> Winston claims that he is entitled to overtime pay because he was 21 employed to perform local deliveries only, thus excluding him from the exemption. Defendants
22 argue that they are entitled to summary judgment under the exemption.<sup>4</sup> D & N also argues that it is

1 entitled to summary judgment because Winston was employed exclusively by Air Truck.<sup>5</sup> I
 2 previously considered these arguments when I converted defendants' motion to dismiss into one for 3 summary judgment.<sup>6</sup> On the record then before me, I found that Winston had raised two genuine 4 issues of material fact that precluded summary judgment: whether the exemption applies and 5 whether D & N qualified as Winston's employer.<sup>7</sup> The now-further-developed record leaves neither 6 of these issues, so I grant summary judgment in defendants' favor.

7 Discussion

8 A. Summary-Judgment Standards

9 Summary judgment is appropriate when the pleadings and admissible evidence "show there 10 is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of 11 law."<sup>8</sup> When considering summary judgment, the court views all facts and draws all inferences in 12 the light most favorable to the nonmoving party.<sup>9</sup> If reasonable minds could differ on material facts,
 13 summary judgment is inappropriate because its purpose is to avoid unnecessary trials when the facts
 14 are undisputed, and the case must then proceed to the trier of fact.<sup>10</sup>

15 If the moving party satisfies Rule 56 by demonstrating the absence of any genuine issue of 16 material fact, the burden shifts to the party resisting summary judgment to "set forth specific facts
 17 showing that there is a genuine issue for trial."<sup>11</sup> The nonmoving party "must do more than simply 18 show that there is some metaphysical doubt as to the material facts"; he "must produce specific 19 evidence, through affidavits or admissible discovery material, to show that" there is a sufficient

3 Defendants offer the same exhibits that they attached to their earlier motion to dismiss<sup>14</sup> with

3 B. Defendants are entitled to summary judgment based on the Motor Carrier Exemption to the FLSA.

4 Defendants argue that, as employers of drivers who operate vehicles in interstate commerce,
5 they are exempt from overtime pay. They characterize their shipments as overwhelmingly 6 interstate.<sup>22</sup> Defendants point out that Winston has admitted—by failing to respond to their request 7 for admissions—that: (1) his duties included performance of “safety affecting activities on a motor 8 vehicle used in transportation on public highways in interstate commerce,”<sup>23</sup> (2) the goods he 9 delivered had originated outside of the State of Nevada,<sup>24</sup> and (3) that he could have reasonably been 10 expected to make an interstate journey.<sup>25</sup> Winston argues that the exemption does not apply because 11 he only made intrastate deliveries, but the majority of his response is dedicated to refuting 12 defendants’ answer to the complaint.

13 Section 13(b)(1) of the FLSA provides an overtime exemption for certain motor-carrier
14 employees under the authority of the Secretary of Transportation.<sup>26</sup> The Motor Carrier Exemption is 15 narrowly construed against employers and applies only to those falling “plainly and unmistakably
16 within [the] terms and spirit” of the exemption.<sup>27</sup> “An employer who claims an exemption from the

27 partnerships, societies, and joint stock companies, as well as individuals.” 1 U.S.C. § 1; 49 U.S.C. § 13102(18), whereas “transportation” includes “services related to that movement . . . of passengers and property.” 49 U.S.C. § 13102(23).

28 <sup>27</sup> Arnold v. Ben Kanowsky, Inc., 361 U.S. 388, 396 (1960).

1 FLSA has the burden of showing that the exemption applies”<sup>28</sup> and that the Secretary of 2 Transportation has jurisdiction. “If jurisdiction is claimed over a driver who has not driven in 3 interstate commerce, evidence must be presented that the carrier has engaged in interstate commerce
 4 and that the driver could reasonably have been expected to make one of the carrier’s interstate runs.
 5 Satisfactory evidence would be statements from drivers and carriers, and any employment
 6 agreements.”<sup>29</sup>

7 Defendants have carried their burden to show that the exemption applies and that neither of 8 them was required to pay Winston overtime under the FLSA. The undisputed material facts show
 9 that both Air Truck and D & N were motor carriers engaged in interstate transportation and that 10 Winston could reasonably have been expected to make one of their interstate runs.<sup>30</sup>

11 I previously found that Darren Bresee’s affidavit—which vaguely affirmed only that Winston 12 “performed his deliveries in the company’s commercial fleet vehicles on the highways in interstate 13 commerce”<sup>31</sup>—was insufficient to warrant summary judgment in light of the rebuttal evidence
 14 offered by Winston: his sworn, generalized statements that his job was purely intrastate, that he was 15 a “local pick-up and delivery driver,” “100%” of [his] transportation duties [we]re intrastate not 16 interstate,” and “the final rest destination” for his deliveries was always Nevada.<sup>32</sup> But defendants
 17 now offer admissible and more specific evidence—Winston’s own admissions (by default) that: (1) 18 his duties included performance of “safety affecting activities on a motor vehicle used in 19 transportation on public highways in interstate commerce,”<sup>33</sup> (2) the goods he delivered had

1 originated outside of the State of Nevada,<sup>34</sup> and (3) that he could have reasonably been expected to 2 make an interstate journey.<sup>35</sup> Because the record now shows that defendants are motor carriers
3 engaged in interstate commerce and that Winston could “reasonably be expected to perform one of 4 his shipments in interstate commerce,”<sup>36</sup> I find defendants are entitled to summary judgment based 5 on the Motor Carrier Exemption to the FLSA. And because I find that Winston is an exempt
6 employee, I need not determine if Winston was also an employee of D & N; the exemption shields 7 both companies from liability for overtime-wage claims.

8 Conclusion

9 Accordingly, with good cause appearing and no reason for delay, IT IS HEREBY 10 ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED that defendants’ motion for summary judgment [ECF
11 25] is GRANTED. The Clerk of Court is instructed to enter final judgment in favor of
